FATHER BRUTAL AVER CARPER CHILDREN IN DEFENDING SESCO, 18

12-Year-Old Boy, Sheridan, Creates Excitement By Testimony Today

TELLS OF HANGING

Sister Lends Damaging Testimony Thursday

(BULLETIN)

Testimony of 16-year-old Sheridan Carper, brother of Sesco Carper, 18, on trial for murdering his father, Harvey Carper, last August, caused excitement in Fairfield-co Court today.

Called as a defense witness, the youth told of brutality his father had committed on his brother, Sesco, and on other members of the family, corroborating the story told by his sister, Verona, Thursday.

While the boy was on the stand, the prosecution asked, "You hated your father didn't you, sonny?" "No," replied the boy. "Then why didn't you hate him?" the state asked, "After you saw him hang your brother in the well and beat him as you say he did?" "The reason I didn't hate him is because he was my father," the youth replied courageously.

Claiming that her father was 'cruel, bad, vicious and dangerous' Miss Verona Carper, 28, sister of Sesco Carper, 18, of Whisler, related pathetic story to the jury Thursday of a drab and dreary home life following the death of the mother and subsequent death of a ten-year old sister who was allegedly beaten and kicked by the father. Verona Carper testified that the little sister, Ella was struck by the father who used his fists and then a club.

Miss Carper, whose testimony was listened to attentively by the large crowd which filled the Fairfield-co courtroom, said that frequent beatings had been the lot of her brothers, sisters and herself. She mentioned various times when the father entered altercations with neighbors and threatened them with clubs, knives and corncutters.

CHARGES MADE

She continued her testimony by saying that her father flew into a rage when Sesco, the defendant, was only 12 years old and as a frequent climax to his beating tied a rope around the youngster's neck and hung him in an 85-foot well. He removed the boy before he was strangled to death, however.

Another instance which happened in the cornfield when the father and the boys become engaged in a free-for-all fight, the weapons being used consisted of tools, clubs hoe handles, rocks, knives and corn cutters, was also told. Upon another occasion the sister said her father had tied Sesco to a porch post and beat him across the back with three heavy switches cut from a thicket.

The Carpers moved to Whisler in 1929, she said, where her father bought a farm.

She said the last time she saw him was on Aug. 2.

DEFENSE BEGINS

Habitues of the Fairfield-co courtroom are of the opinion that young Carper who has pleaded self defense from the start, claiming that he shot his father after the latter had attempted to cut him with a knife will not be found guilty of a first degree murder charge as cited in the indictment.

The defense is being conducted by Tom Renick, this city and George Vorys, of Lancaster.

Petition To Nominate A. V. Donahey Is Reported Carried In Central Ohio

A petition to place former Governor A. Victor Donahey's name in the Democratic gubernatorial primaries has been circulated in parts of this county, parts of Ross-co and in Chillicothe, it has been reported.

Democratic leaders, when questioned concerning the move, were at a loss to explain the report but said it was probably without the knowledge of the former governor whose custom has never been to keep his political actions under cover.

PROGRESS MADE IN EQUIPMENT TAKES WORK FROM HOUSEWORK

New Appliances and Numerous Devices Featured in Kitchen At The Herald's Cooking School Next Week at Memorial Hall.

What will it benefit a women if she has the best cook book in the world, if she is the most skilled cook in the cuntry and has the nicest family in the town to cook for. All of these accomplishments are practically in vain, according to the modern home economics authorities, unless this women is given an efficient, up-to-date kitchen.

A worn out range, a badly insulated refrigeration, shabby and awkward utensils, dull knives, make the kitchen duties irksome and tedious. The modern kitchen with good lighting and ventilation, necessary equipment in excellent, high-quality models and sufficient of the practical new devices at hand, will speed the work, turnout better cookery and make a happier household all around.

POINTERS GIVEN

These are some of the pointers which Mrs. George O. Thurn will tell the women of Circleville and vicinity next week during the Herald Cooking School. Each of her four interesting and lively sessions will begin with a brief, but helpful discussion of new developments in home making. Mrs. George O. Thurn is in touch with every modern movement in Home Economics and she brings the benefit of her experience to the women who attend the Cooking School.

In each session after the discussions, Mrs. Thurn begins the preparation of the day's special recipes, explaining every move and ingredient while she works. She will answer questions at the same time, and demonstrate any especially difficult points

CAMPAIGN OF HOOVER IS ON

President is Endorsed By Ohio Republican Committee; Others To Follow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 — President Hoover's campaign for re-nomination and re-election was regarded as formally launched today.

Action by the Ohio State Republican committee in endorsing the president and giving his managers a free hand in the selection of convention delegates is the first of a series of such moves in important states. Other states where the party organization is well controlled are expected to follow suit.

Unless there is an unexpected uprising in some quarters, Mr. Hoover will win renomination by default. Nowhere on the political horizon does there appear a possible champion to ally the anti-Hoover sentiment that unquestionably exists in some quarters.

One after another, senator Johnson of California, Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Morris of Nebraska, and a few others have been importuned to allow their names to be used, and to enter primaries against Mr Hoover but none of them has consented.

ADMITTED SLAYER REPUDIATES TALK

Man Who Confessed Part In Lima "Quarry Mystery" Denies Statement.

LIMA, O., Jan. 22 —Solution of the gruesome and baffling "quarry murder" here eight months ago apparently vanished into thin air again today with the repudiation of his alleged confession to committing the crime by Lloyd Zeigler 19-year-old inmate of Mansfield reformatory

Breaking down when he was brought here to face two other men whom authorities said he named as accomplices in the crime, Zeigler denied the murders of Thelma Wood, 17, and Earl Truesdale, 21, saying he had only hoped his story would result in his being sent to another prison

And thus, it seemed, Zeigler's repudiated confession merely added another chapter to the volume of stories being told by prisoners in hopes of securing prison transfers Only recently, two youthful inmates of the Boys' industrial school at Lancaster revealed startling details of the cremation of a family of eight. When authorities investigated and found that facts substantiated their repudiations, they were returned to the industrial school.

FINANCE PLAN TO AID NATION NEARS ACTION

Task Of Liberating Business Forces By Aiding Credit To Begin

AWAIT CONGRESS

Hoover Busy Trying To Fill Other Jobs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The reconstruction finance corporation, backed by $500,000,000 of treasury funds, will take up the task of liberating vital business forces by stabilizing credits next Monday.

This was virtually assured today, as the house prepared to adopt the conference report on the measure, and the senate was ready to do likewise this week.

AWAIT CONGRESS

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, has resigned as head of the American disarmament delegation to take up the job of directing the huge relief agency, awaiting final passage in Congress.

President Hoover continued an intensive study of prospective appointees for the remaining three directors position, with indications that he would name them as soon as the bill has become law.

No difficulty was anticipated in house action today, Rep. Steagall (D) of Alabama, chairman of the banking committee, said.

"We will adopt the conference report after an hour's discussion," he said. "Of course, there may be some opposition to the last."

Since Gen Dawes has taken the sole Republican position open among the appointive positions, the president will restrict his selections to Democrats.

ASK RECEIVER FOR BUS FIRM

Judge Adkins to Make Appointment Saturday Following Suit of Porter.

Judge Joseph W. Adkins will be asked Saturday to appoint a receiver for the Ohio Scenic Stages Inc., following a suit by E. E. Porter, 227 S Scioto-st, president and treasurer to have the bus company dissolved and that a receiver be named to operate the business and to take charge of all property and money. The petition, prepared by E. L. Crist, also asks that levies in favor of the Circleville Oil Co., and W. H. Nelson be stayed pending action.

A restraining order to prevent W. A. Tharp, of Washington C H. D. B. Jennings of New Holland, Lee Luellen of Williamsport, William Mason of Circleville, Wayne Strous of Laurelville, M Steinmeier of Marshfield and Mrs Nellie Gibbs of Athens of disposing of any money belonging to the corporation has geen granted by Judge Adkins. Party defendants in the suit besides the above named are Jane Mayer of Columbus, secretary of the corporation, and Alma Houck of Columbus, vice president of the corporation, both of whom are directors.

Mr. Porter's suit says the company cannot continue business because a bus owned by the company is now in the hands of the sheriff by virtue of suits of the Circleville Oil Co., and W. H. Nelson for money due on gasoline bills and that by loss of the bus the company loses its business, franchise and property to the damage of the corporation and its stockholders.

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM CRIME ON CHILDHOOD

—SAYS DR. BERRY.

1,000 Welfare Workers, Educators, Health Officials Meet In Conference

CITES RECREATION

Auditorium Packed For Thursday Talks

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22.—The present educational system in Ohio is guilty of a "crime on childhood," Dr. Charles Scott Berry, director of the bureau of special education at Ohio State University, told nearly 1,000 welfare workers, educators and health officials here today at Governor George White's child health and protection conference.

Upbraiding the educational system particularly for its "crime" against mentally-handicapped boys and girls, for whom, he said, "universal education is a mockery," Dr. Berry pleaded for sympathy and understanding of such cases.

BLAMES TEACHERS

Too often, Dr. Berry said, teachers and principals "are pleased and relieved when the mentally handicapped drop out of school." The function of teachers, he declared, is not to decide whether a child should be taught or whether a child who is handicapped is worth teaching.

"Through the enactment and enforcement of compulsory school attendance laws, society has expressed its belief that all children are worth educating. The teacher's function is to educate him," Dr. Berry said.

Fixed standards of learning, "reverence for traditional courses of study," and "the great emphasis placed on the acquiring of knowledge without reference to its effect on the pupil," also were attacked.

Churches and schools were criticized for compelling many children to look to the movies, the radio, the streets and the dance halls for recreation.

"Our churches," said Dr. Berry, "which might provide desirable social and recreational opportunities for youth, are dark five or six nights of the week, and the school buildings, which might serve as centers for the development of the social, recreational and intellectual interests of the youth, are only open six hours a day five days a week."

SKINNER PRESIDES

Dr. Beverly O. Skinner, state director of education, and State Welfare Director John McSweeney presided at today's meetings.

Auditoriums were packed for yesterday's meetings when Rabbi Hillel Silver of Cleveland; Dr. T. Wingate Todd, professor of anatomy at Western Reserve university at Cleveland; Dr. A. Graeme Mitchell, professor of pediatrics at the University of Cincinnati, and other authorities presented their ideas on child health development.

PAROLE OFFICER AVERS CRIME HELPED BY MONEY HOARDING

COLUMBUS, O Jan 22 — hoarding of money is aggravating the crime situation as well as retarding the recovery of business according to Prentice Reeves Columbus, member of the State Board of Parole.

Reeves, who is recognized as an expert on crime and social conditions, says that while those who profited to speak have shown the connection between hoarding and a business recovery the public has overlooked hoarding as a cause of crime.

"Most crimes have a motive," Reeves said today, "and greed is frequently this motive When greed is coupled with temptation it is more difficult to resist

"If hoarding is allowed it is natural to expect an increase in robberies involving large sums sometimes fatal, of persons who keep money and other easily transportable valuables about their premises hidden in the proverbial stocking, vase mattress or [illegible] where. It would seem that the robbers know fairly well where to look for hoarded wealth.

"These crimes result from the dangerous combination of greed and temptation are frequently fatal to the victims"

There are two reasons for this according to Reeves First the crime ordinarily is committed by some person who knows and is known by the victim and second in fear of recognition he is tempted to violence, hoping, in vain, to enhance his chances of escape

"The Board of Parole" Reeves says considers its principal duty to be the reduction of crime to a minimum and the elimination of those who have committed crimes

"If we are to be successful, we must have the co-operation of the public If money and other valuables are kept in safe and proper places provided for them one of the present causes of violent crime will be reduced

"While officers of law are not interested in the hoarding side of hoarding, I am sure almost everyone recognizes it The social angle of this recent practice must be acknowledged One way the public can aid in suppressing crime, immediately and effectively, is to discourage hoarding."

MECHLING SCORES 14 GOALS AS C. A. C. LOSES 66 TO 35

Uninteresting Contest is Won By Hebron Barthis Gassers as Club Decides to Quit For Season Because of Poor Attendance; Officiating of Hinchman Booed by Fans, Players.

Unable to stop Gene Mechling, former Capital University luminary, as well as several other members of his team, caused the Circleville Athletic Club to take a sock on the chin Thursday evening by a lop-sided 66-35 score. Shooting at will, and hitting the hoop on a good percentage of shots, the Hebron Balthis Gassers proved just too strong for the club tossers.

Because of poor attendance at the majority of the club's games, Manager Joe Lynch made it known after the game that the club season is ended.

The game started with Hebron gaining the upper hand in the first minute and when the first period had ended the score was 14-6. The half ended 31-13 with the club never having a lookin.

Incompetent officiating helped reduce the color of the contest with both sides fouling plenty, having but few personals called.

The last half was almost as hectic as the first with the game ending 66-35.

The play of Mechling, as usual, was the high spot of the contest, this athlete crashing through with 14 field goals and a free throw for 29 points, six less than the entire club team. Judy Gordon with six goals and Boyce Parks with five goals and a free throw led the club tossers.

Bill Hinchman, former Ohio State athlete, officiated.

Battalino Bout Awaits Approval

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 22.—The sanction of the National boxing commission was all that was being awaited today for the 10-round fistic bout between Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., and Freddie Miller here next Wednesday night.

Battalino, whose featherweight title was vacated by the New York boxing commission when he reported over weight for his recent championship bout with Lew Feldman, has signified his acceptance of the bout. Several months ago Battalino easily defeated Miller but since that time, his attempt to keep within the featherweigh zone has weakened him considerably.

That being considered, Miller has a fair chance of toppling his opponent.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas Bloats up your stomach. You have a tilddy, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Many Contests On Court Schedule

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22.—With Ohio State University students turning out enmasse today, lending their loyal support as well as physical, if it were possible, the Buckeye drillers prepared to board a night train for Evanston, Ill. There they will clash with the mighty Northwestern team Saturday night with temporary leadership of the Big Ten conference going to the winner.

By far the most important on the week's menu, this game not only meant the settlement of league leadership but also the first conference defeat for neither of the contestants. Northwestern has marched to five triumphs while the Ohio State cagers have topped their only three opponents.

Despite its importance, all the basketball interest has not centered in Evanston because eleven battles will be fought within Ohio's boundaries tonight.

Wittenberg, topped from a tie for leadership in the Buckeye conference with defeats at the hands of Ohio Wesleyan and Miami plays host to Ohio University, last year's champions, who have failed to click so far this season.

Games scheduled in the Ohio loop are Ashland at Ohio Northern; Marietta at Capital; Other encounters will see St. John's at Defiance; Kent at Kenyon; Hiran at Penn; Ohio Wesleyan at Western Reserve; Westminister at John Carroll; Toledo at Bowling Green, Rio Grande at Pikeville; and Wilmington at Hanover.

Bressler, Luque Are Released

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Reconstruction of the Brooklyn Dodgers began today with the unconditional release of two veterans, Outfielder Ray (Rube) Bressler and Adolfo Luque, Cuban pitcher. Being 10-year men, they could not be sent to the minors but were released outright so that they may negotiate for new jobs.

Luque, who is 42, pitched a few games for the Boston Braves in 1914, but started his real big league career with Cincinnati in 1918. He came to Brooklyn after many years of faithful service with the Reds. Last season he won seven games and lost six, but pitched only five complete contests.

Bressler, another Cincinnati veteran, started his big league career the same year as Luque, but came up with the Athletics. In 1918 he joined Luque on the Reds. The Rube was used mainly as a pinch hitter last season. Both made their exit together today after playing together for 14 years.

PRINCES LOSE

TIFFIN, O., Jan. 22.—Failure to take advantage of their free throwing opportunities today resulted in the Heildeberg cagers droping another basketball game, to Akron, 27-21. The game was hard fought all the way, but the Akron outfit made its "gift" throws good along with its goals. Weber, Akron forward led the way in scoring with 10 points.

Francis Crowley Goes To Death

By JACK LAIT
Author of "The Big House"
Written Expressly for International News Service and The Herald

SING SING PRISON, OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 22.—They knocked him off.

He was just a little fat boy. I have seen many executions, but I have never seen one so completely according to the code as this one. There have been many controversies about whether or not they dope the boys who are about to answer for the great doom. Some say yes, some say no. I want to tell you "officially"—yes!

DIED GAME

Crowley walked into the chamber of last resort, not cocky, and not yellow. They had shot him so full of hop, that he didn't know what it was all about. And he was game—plenty. And of all the murderers it has been my unfortunate experience to watch, as these great states exacted their price, I have never seen anybody go to his doom with a sweeter, more completely understanding resignation than this boy.

We gathered in the ante-room, the coppers frisked up for fear that we might have on our persons cameras, we didn't.

After plenty of delays we were let into the death chamber. It was a very little theater, including police, deputies, physicians and officials, I guess there weren't forty in there.

We all removed our hats, because even reporters in the presence of death, pay respect to a crisis.

The copper moved nervously about.

At the far end of the room there seemed to be some activity. We sat or stood (I stood) awaiting a great story.

The coppers seemed to be more nervous than we were.

At the remote end of the little chamber a door opened. Two policemen stepped in. The door swung behind them. It opened again, a priest walked in. Around his neck was a purple surplice. He was tremendously agitated.

GAZES OVER ROOM

Behind him came a little, fat boy, he had upset Manhattan Island. He wore a white shirt, and he looked like my boy or your boy, He was quite alive, He looked the little room over, and he said: "I don't mind."

His life was three minutes to go. And he didn't mind.

He found the chair without any direction. There was a smile on his face.

In a feeble, game way he waved his right hand to the sergeant against the wall and bade him hello.

I have seen many guys die game. Some of them thought of some swell ideas to pull at the last moment. But Crowley was the only one I ever heard get specific about the machinery of the law that was knocking him off, when he said;

"I don't think it's tight enough down below." (meaning the straps) so the great empire state paid off, and Francis Crowley is now no longer with us. He murdered a copper, he was a bad boy, and I suppose we're better off without him.

But as I stood there in the death chamber of the big house - - and the great state of New York rubbed out, I couldn't help but think--just a little fat boy.

He croaked a copper. He was a robber, but, he was a product of Manhattan Island. Any of us could have been Francis Crowley!

When he stiffened against the black belts, with a smile on his face, there was something about the expression of that kid's face that made me ask myself:

"Am I not to blame?

The illegitimate child of a servant girl and a copper, the frantic kid "raised up" with no breeding and no training, passed out like a gentleman - - and he was not born to be one.

The great empire state is washed up of Francis Crowley but was it his fault or ours?

Brooklyn Seeking Jewish Star

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Al Cohen, the speedy outfielder whose signed contract was on file at the offices of the Brooklyn club today, may turn out to be the star Jewish ball player for whom the Dodgers have been searching for many years.

That a good Hebrew player can make the turnstiles click merrily in the metropolis was demonstrated during Andy Cohen's brief stay with the Giants. But Cohen couldn't stick, nor could Mose Solomon and Harry Rosenberg, other prospects tried out by the Giants. The Yankees had no better luck with Jimmy Reese and others.

Brooklyn once had a coming Jewish star in Moe Berg, but let him go. Now Cohen, who is the son of a Rabbi in Newark, N. J., will get his chance.

Larry Sutton, the Brooklyn scout who has unearthed many big league stars, says Cohen will make the grade. Sutton declares the lad is a natural ball player.

Those on perfect attendance list in the eighth grade are Cleo Crawford, Eloise Hosler, Estella Kellar, Mary Elizabeth Longerberry and Evelyn Zimmerman.

The success of the Monroe teams in basketball this season has been due to their fine sportsmanship and clever team work. Using a short passing attack and a stubborn defense last Friday night, they were able to defeat Atlanta by the following scores: Girls 29-19; boys 23-15.

If one were able to measure a team's success in terms of individual play, which is not possible, Monroe has two stars, namely, Marjorie Arbogast of the girls, who has an average of a little better than 13 points per game and John Downs who has an average of a little better than nine points per game.

June Hanawalt visited friends in Fort Wayne, Ind., over the week-end.

"What hat do you wear?" asks an anvertisement. We always make it a point to wear our own.

Not many men have laughed at Wall Street. It's against the rules.

CHEAP FOODS TO DEPEND ON FOR VITAMIN C

Some families nowadays have to cut their food costs to the limit, but the menu, however economical, should not omit the essential nutrients. The more the choice of foods is limited, the more difficult it is to provide a balanced diet. Likewise, the Bureau of Home Economics urges, the more limited the choice, the more important the balanced diet becomes.

That is the answer to the well-to-do housewife who complained the other day that her husband wanted more variety than these low-cost menus provide. She can, of course, improve those low-cost menus, the bureau points out, by adding more vegetables, fruits, and meats according to her pocketbook, thus reducing the requirements for bread and cereals. For low-cost diets, however, bread and cereals must be depended on for a substantial proportion of the food values, with more limited quantities of the more expensive foods to balance them. The point that must not be lost sight of is that certain different kinds of food are necessary. The bureau's suggested menus provide those kinds.

The housewife must remember the vitamins. The lack of certain vitamins is one of the most serious deficiencies in any diet. Vitamins, proteins, starches, sugars, fats, and mineral salts, all are food materials essential to human health. To provide those necessary things, in necessary quantity every day, the diet must be balanced. The menus suggested by the Bureau of Home Economics are planned on that basis, utilizing the cheapest of each of the necessary kinds of food.

Vitamin A, the anti-infection vitamin, has been discussed in this series. Vitamin C is the subject today. Without vitamin C human beings are in danger of scurvy, one of the diseases that appears when people lack fresh foods. Scurvy used to be common on long ship voyages. What foods shall the housekeeper depend on to provide the family with vitamin C?

The cheapest source of vitamin C is raw cabbage. Green peppers have as much vitamin C per ounce as raw cabbage, but the cabbage is easier to use in sufficient quantities. Then come tomatoes, raw or canned, and the citrus fruits—oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tangerines. Parsley, too, is high in vitamin C and raw turnips (rutabagas) also are good. Raw spinach has as much as raw cabbage, but, like most other vegetables, loses some vitamin C when cooked. Tomatoes, fortunately, and peaches retain their vitamin C, even when canned. Potatoes, despite a loss in cooking, are a cheap source of this vitamin because such large quantities of potatoes are used

And there we have another important point to remember Vitamin C is likely to be destroyed in cooking—certainly in long-time cooking. Therefore, it is a good thing to eat cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, and even spinach raw. And it is important when these vegetables are cooked to use quick-cooking methods—such as are suggested in today's recipes for cabbage and spinach.

Fruits, of course, because they are eaten raw, are an excellent source of vitamin C. Apples, bananas, peaches, pineapple, though they have only one-third as much vitamin C as oranges and the other citrus fruits, are a good source because most people like them so well they eat plenty of them—when they are cheap enough, of course Just now, with apples as low as two or three cents a pound in some places, bananas as low as 20 cents a dozen, oranges a penny apiece, tangerines 10 cents a dozen in some markets, and grapefruits as low as 3 or 4 cents apiece, it is a good thing for variety's sake to use the fruit you can afford, in place, perhaps of a vegetable, and certainly in place of a pudding or a pie

Vitamin C is particularly important for children, and babies can take orange juice or tomato juice. Children past the sieved-food stage can take cabbage finely chopped, which can be made into very attractive sandwiches Mixed with a little creamed butter or margarine, the chopped cabbage can be spread between thin slices of bread and children will like it The rest of the family can, of course, get a good supply of vitamin C in cole slaw, or cabbage salad, to which, for variety, other raw vegetables may be added.

RECIPES

Five Minute Cabbage

2 cups milk.
1 quart shredded cabbage.
3 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.
2 tablespoons flour.
Salt.
Pepper.

Heat the milk and cook the cabbage in it for 2 minutes. Add the blended fat and flour, and the seasoning, cook rapidly for 3 or 4 minutes, and stir constantly. The cabbage retains its crispness and is delicate in flavor and color.

Cabbage Bujea

4 tablespoons or more of fat.
1 or 1 1-2 onions, sliced.
1 green peper, shredded.
1 1-2 quarts shredded cabbage.
1 1-2 teaspoons salt.
1-2 cup boiling water.

Melt the fat and cook the onions and pepper until the onions are slightly browned. Add the cabbage, salt, and water. Stir frequently and simmer until the vegetables are tender.

Quick-Cooked Spinach

Carefully pick over the spinach, discard wilted leaves, cut off the stem ends, and wash in several waters to remove grit. If the spinach is young and tender, it can be cooked in the water that clings to the leaves. Start the cooking at moderate heat, cover the kettle at first, turn the spinach now and then until thoroughly wilted, then remove the cover, and stir frequentiv. Cook about 10 to 15 minutes (for a quantity of 2 pounds), chop fine, season with pepper, salt, and butter or other fat, and serve. Spinach cooked in this way will retain its attractive green color and fresh flavor.

OHIO INJURY MARK IS LOW

The lowest monthly fatality rate in Ohio industry since April, 1928, was recorded in December, the Division of Safety and Hygiene of the Industrial Commission reports.

The record for the month was 64 deaths and 13,265 non-fatal injuries, with a time loss of 530,224 days, which is the best severity record for any month of last year.

The two construction groups led in fatalities with 12; public employees had 9; mining 8; commercial employment 5; foods and beverages and care and custody of buildings and grounds 4 each. clerical and professional, utilities, and rubber and rubber goods, 3 each: lumber and wood products, blast furnaces, steel plants, and rolling mills, metal goods, and vehicle manufacture, 2 each: laundries and dry cleaners, assembling and erecting machinery, paper and printing, quarries and stone crushing and transportation, 1 each. Eight industrial groups had no fatalities.

The five principal causes of accidents were: Handling objects, 2,449 with 5 fatalities; machinery, 2,198 with no fatalities; hand tools, 1,453 with 2 fatalities; falls of persons, 1,328 with 13 fatalities; and motor vehicles, 959 with 10 fatalities; These five causes were accountable for 63 per cent of all injuries, 47 per cent of all fatalities and 52 per cent of the time loss for the month.

Pickaway-co's record for December was 22 claims filed, of which one represented fatality; none permanent partial disabilities, nine causing over seven days lost time, two, seven days or less and 10 medical cases involving no time loss The time loss for the county for the month was 6,244 days.

In December, 1930, there were 15,749 accidents, with 95 fatalities and a time loss of 827,647 days in Ohio industry, a reduction in December 1931, of 2,484 in accidents, 31 in fatalities and 297,423 days in time loss.

FLYING RATES REDUCED

NEW YORK—Even the air lines are falling in with the trend of the times in reducing costs. The line from New York to Washington, via Newark, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, has announced a drastic cut in fares, in some instances lower than the extra fare trains. The new schedule makes the air fare $10 for one way and $18.50 for a round trip The fare from New York to Baltimore is $9 25 one way, $17 round trip; to Philadelphia, one way $5.

CUBAN DIVORCE DECLINE

HAVANA, Cuba.—Divorce decrees in Cuba amounted to 593 in 1930. About 260 of them were the result of action on the part of the husband, 285 were initiated by wives and 48 by both parties to the marriage contract, according to figures just published. In the majority of divorces the husband's age was between 20 and 25 years and that of the wife between 15 and 20. The number of divorces in 1930 was less, however, than during the five years preceding.

Whistling and Bridge

THAT New York University professor with the well developed superiority complex, who recently classed all whistlers as morons, has now brought bridge players down a peg or two by expounding the theory that there is no relation between bridge and brains. And just when the bridge fans had congratulated themselves on being superior to the whistlers, too.

Though these brutal judgments may have shaken their confidence a bit, the whistlers and bridge players will not agree with the professor. Nor have amens been heard in the corner where sit those who envy the genius who has mastered the art of whistling or the intricacies of contract.

It has frequently been said that special facility in mental mathematics such as are involved in bridge is usually evidence of incapacity in other directions, but to disprove this are some of the country's leading mathematicians and economists who are experts at such games as bridge and chess.

After all, everyone is a moron but thee and me and sometimes I discover a little of the moron in thee. The professor who thinks so little of whistlers and bridge players does not stand very high no doubt in the opinion of those schools of thought to which he does not subscribe, and he probably thinks no better of them.

Enthusiasm

PERSONLITY, good clothes, polished shoes, good looks and the gift of gab are undoubtedly aids in salesmanship, but none of them holds a candle to enthusiasm. He who lacks the other may still sell goods but no one ever made good as a salesman who lacked enthusiasm.

For enthusiasm is the sort of thing that makes you believe the costly cash register you sell is the prime requisite of business, that the automobile for which you are the agent is the best at any price, that your store offers the best quality at the lowest price and that the town you are trying to sell to others is the best in the world.

It is the enthusiasm of the lawyer that convinces him his client and his cause are always right. It is the enthusiasm of the doctor that makes his diagnosis accurate and his treatment effective. It is the enthusiasm of the insurance man that persuades him he is doing a service to all he explains his policies to. And it is the enthusiasm of the service club member that convinces him he is in business to serve humanity first and himself afterward.

Enthusiasm is the thing that lets a man argue that white is black and get away with it. The enthusiastic make the best sales prospects as well as the sales people. Those easily rendered enthusiastic have no sales resistance because they instantly contract the contagious enthusiasm of the salesman.

Enthusiasm, like truth, admits of no compromise. It is a conviction of rightness. It radiates confidence in one's self and in one's business or product. Today more than ever before it is vital to success in any enterprise.

Hand Clasps

NOTHING so eloquently reveals character as the hand-clasp. One may train his voice to express courage and a cordiality unpossessed; one may acquire a pokerface; one may feign pleasure at meeting and displeasure at parting; but the offered hand neither conceals nor deceives. A blind man, deaf and dumb from birth, can read this message of the hand.

Is it a strong hand that functions with the irrisible determination of a vise? If it is it belongs to a he-man-a go getter—or to a true friend. Its warm and sturdy clasp belongs to a frank countenance and a feeling heart.

Is it a hand that gives a quick, slight pressure and at once liberates itself? That sort belong to the busy man and is born of independence and individualism.

Is it a limp hand? Then it belongs to a limp man to one who is too tired to be interested in persons and things. To him hand shaking is an unnecessary formality in which no energy should be wasted.

Is it a lingering hand which caresses rather than clasps and which refuses to liberate its prey as if a predatory hand- until it has accomplished its purpose? This is the practiced hand-clasp of the politician the swindler and the cheat. It belongs to the man with a "mission" or a "message."

Grasp the hands of those you would have show their "hand."

SYNOPSIS

Leaving Hawaii shortly after her father's death, young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith goes to San Francisco, where she meets and loves a handsome man named Tony. Fanchon is shocked to learn that Tony is a racketeer, implicated in a recent murder. She, too, is now wanted. Fanchon escapes in an airplane under the name of "Smith." Evelyn Howard, whom she had met on the boat coming from Hawaii, is aboard. Evelyn is enroute to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she has never met. After Fanchon confides in Evelyn, the latter treats her coolly. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. She decides to escape Tony and the past and start life anew by masquerading as Evelyn.

She marveled at the depths to which she had sunk.

CHAPTER VII

Fanchon was carried, sitting on the clasped hands of two of the men. They reached the cars and the ambulance. Fanchon was put into a car and taken to the home of one of the farmers. There she was questioned again. She gave steadily, tersely, the names of the pilot and of Mr. Eames. The name of the air company, which would be informed at once, which would inform the relatives of the dead. She said again Miss Smith . . . and added that as far as she knew, the other girl had no people, to claim her. To claim the body

"She told you nothing of herself?" asked Doctor Warren.

"Just that she had no relatives and was going to New York to look for work She had been working," said Fanchon, steadily, "in San Francisco and had saved for the—the trip. I think her home was in San Francisco. In some lodging house"

"I see. Poor girl—" said the doctor.

She was, he added, still breathing A transfusion had been arranged for at the hospital. But there was very little chance.

"Any?" breathed Fanchon She hated herself . for fearing that the other girl might live She marveled at the depths to which she had sunk, the lies to which she had committed herself

"If she does not live," said the doctor gravely, "it would be better for her . . ."

"You mean?" whispered Fanchon, only half understanding.

He touched his head significantly

"And your people?" he asked her, "we must wire them immediately"

She opened Evelyn's bag. She took from it the card with Mrs Carstairs' address on it. "My aunt," she said. "If you will wire to this name and address?" she asked . . . "and say I am safe and am coming on by train. When can I leave Doctor Warren?"

"Do you feel strong enough to go alone?" he asked her. "Won't you wait until your people come for you?"

Fanchon shook her head.

"No, I must," she said, "get home as quickly as I can."

"I understand. There is a train to New York tomorrow morning. You will stay here quietly with the Lawsons until then They will see to everything," said the doctor

He left her in the capable hands of the kindly farmer's wife and returned some hours later to make sure she had suffered no great ill from exposure. The airplane company had wired, he told her, and the relatives of McKenon, the pilot, of the steward and mechanic as well as the Eames relations would be on to claim the bodies. "You were right about Miss Smith," he said "No one has any record of her Her passage was booked through an agent who does not know the name of the person booking it"

Tony had left the city then, thought Fanchon. It would be some time before he learned of the accident. It would, of course, be in the papers. But he might be where papers were not to be had.

In the morning she left for New York. She left with Doctor Warren more than enough money to take care of . . . "Miss Smith" "Not," said the doctor, sadly, "that it will be needed. It is impossible that she live through the day," he said

He took Fanchon's address . . . in care of Mrs Carstairs. And on her arrival at the depot to await the train, which would be flagged for her, she was given a wire by the station agent

"Immeasurably happy and grateful for your escape Will meet you Pennsylvania Station All my love Aunt Jennie."

There was no going back

In the drawing room which she had engaged, Fanchon, in a borrowed coat and hat, sat staring out of the windows, listening to the beat of the wheels along the shining tracks . . . imposter, they said to her, imposter, imposter.

But she argued that, in a sense, she was doing no real harm Jennie Carstairs had never known Evelyn Howard. She could, therefore, never have loved her. The girl was literally nothing to her, save someone of her blood to whom she owed a belated duty. If Fanchon took her place, Fanchon would, she vowed live up to it; she would give back value received, for affection and peace she would render affection and duty in return. And when time had passed and there was no longer any danger, she would go quietly away and never bother anyone again It was not on the cards that Evelyn would live.

She thought of Evelyn dying with no one of her own about her and her heart constricted with an agony of shame and terror and self loathing But she had spoken, or rather she had kept silent It was too late . too late

Evelyn would die, without recovering consciousness. Jennie Carstairs would be spared all unhappiness and self reproach and she, Fanchon, would find, for a little time, at least, a measure of safety and peace

She opened Evelyn's big, flat, roomy handbag, stained with rain and with Fanchon's own blood. There were letters in it. From Mrs. Carstairs. Long letters, written in a vital, nervous sort of hand There was money. There were the photographs of Evelyn's parents; there were snapshots of, Fanchon thought, the place in which Evelyn must have last lived and called home. There were also snapshots of the school in Honolulu and the one in San Francisco

It would not be hard. It would be more or less natural that Evelyn would not speak much or often of her mother and father to the people who had cast them out As far as Hawaii went, Fanchon was on perfectly safe ground there She studied the letters, the photographs.

Suddenly a thought reached her, stopped her heart for an instant.

Evelyn must have written her aunt It was beyond conception that her hand and Fanchon's should be alike Fanchon fixed that fact firmly in her mind She must remember

She remembered something else, with an effort. Remembered that among the small pieces of luggage Evelyn had brought on the plane had been a little portable typewriter. It was quite within reason that her letters to Mrs. Carstairs had been written on the machine. If so, so much the better.

She thought of the meeting that lay ahead of her. She longed for it, and yet shrank from it. But no great display of affection on her part nor on the part of Mrs. Carstairs would be necessary or even reasonable For they had never known one another

Yet Jennie Carstairs' wire had been affectionate in the extreme. She, thought Fanchon, logically, to the situation, to the tremendous peril in which she knew her niece had been placed It was natural enough Natural, too, that she would not ask Evelyn to talk much of the accident.

MUST HAVE HOBBY TO BE EDUCATED, SAYS PROFESSOR

BOSTON.—A man, to be well educated, should have a hobby.

Professor W Linwood Chase of Boston University's school of education said this in discussing, "What Is an Educated Man"

"A hobby gives a business man a well-rounded development," said Professor Chase "An educated man never 'knows it all.' A hobby may even go as far as to change a man's profession.

"Narrow interests, noticeably poor manners or outstanding lack of information in everyday matters are some of the many marks that label [illegible] as not educated," continued Professor Chase.

"Any person who can hold his own in speech and actions with people is a well educated man. It follows naturally that the [illegible] can be reduced by keeping [illegible] he must always be willing to learn."

OLD S. S. RULE BROKEN

WASHINGTON. — The unwritten privilege of British South American shipping lines to the port of Southampton, England, is due to be broken shortly, according to advices from the London office of the Commerce Department. In the near future the Cap Arcona of the Hamburg-South American Line will call there for passengers. This action, officials of the German line state, has been forced upon them by the failure of the competing British concerns to advance rates in compensation for the decline of the pound.

And now it's feared China will [illegible] war on Japan. And observers [illegible] that Japan will accept [illegible] sort of put the league [illegible] In fact, Japan doesn't care if there are 20,000 leagues under the sea.

AT THE CLIFTONA

A number of the scenes take place in a motion picture theatre, and on the screen is unfolded a heart-rending drama featuring Letta Larbo, famous film star Members of the audience are Chester and his sweetheart (played by Robert Armstrong and Jean Athur,) and Chester, as it so happens has boosted his stock with his girl friend by boasting of a previous love affair with the sceen star. A few days later Letta Larbo, whom he has never even seen comes to town to make a personal appearance!

Lola Lane appears in the role of Letta Larbo, while other members of the cast supporting Armstrong and Miss Arthur are Jason Robards, Mary Doran, George Brent, Grayce Hampton, Spencer Charters and Grace Cunard Vin Moore directed the picture.

AT THE GRAND

No personnel in the theatre is made of sterner stuff than the comedian who inevitably acquires his bag of tricks through a long and picturesque pilgrimage.

The sport follower and his wife or girl friend who view Smith and Dale in the new picture, "Manhattan Parade," at the Grand Theatre Sunday and Monday may not pause to consider a fistic terror and his antagonist lost to Madison Square Garden.

Any member of the family of A. J. Lyle, W. Mound-st, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

ECHO OF YOUNG KILLINGS

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—The overzealousness of more than a score of candidates for places on the Springfield police department following the slaying of four policemen by the Young brothers, resulted in rejection of applications of the entire group. No - sooner had the smoke of battle cleared than the would-be policemen stormed police headquarters seeking the jobs of the slain men. Mayor Thomas H. Gideon censored the men for their disrespect of the dead policemen and ordered then applications withdrawn.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old.

Her system doesn't stagnate, her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

JUDGES SPEAK TO BROTHERHOOD

At the Lutheran Brotherhood Thursday evening three of the men who were judges at the "Contest of the Ages" last winter furnished the program.

After a short business meeting a lunch was served by Ralph Beck and his committee.

The entire Brotherhood sang "America." President Herrmann then introduced Sam Rife, who talked on "The Primary Election," which was well received. George McDowell, talked on "Generalities" first taking the opportunity of getting even with some of the "knockers" who did not favor the decision of the judges. His main subject, however, was on "Education," speaking mainly on what the high school tries to give its students, a very interesting and pleasing talk.

Ed Dailey, also evened up some scores, but spoke mainly on "Changes in Education."

The next meeting Feb. 4, the Brotherhood expects to be entertained by Grove City.

TEXT BOOK RENTAL SYSTEM

INDIANAPOLIS—A text book rental system for all grades in public schools has been proposed by Paul C. Stetson, superintendent of schools here. The move has the sanction of the city's text book committee. Such a system would effect a great savings for school patrons, it was pointed out.

OBITUARY

The Great and Supreme Ruler of the Universe, has in his Infinite wisdom removed from among us, one of our most worthy and esteemed fellow citizens - Samuel M. Pinto, son of Samuel and Elizabeth Ritchart Pinto.

He was born on the old Pinto homestead in north Union-twp, Ross Co., Ohio, July 31, 1853.

And on the morning of Jan. 18, 1932, he passed quietly through the gates of death, without even a struggle to maintain the vital breath of life, at the age of 78 year 5 months and 17 days.

He was one of a family of eleven children, all of whom have preceded him in death with the exception of one sister Mrs. Mary Wiseman of San Francisco, Calif., and one brother Mr. William Pinto of Chillicothe, Ohio.

His early life was spent in and around the community where he was born, assisting his father in the duties of storekeeper and later taking up farming which was his chief occupation until his retirement in 1916. During his early life he united with the first Presbyterian church of Chillicothe, O. to.

On March 8, 1894, at the age of 41 years, he united in Holy Matrimony with Sarah McCollister. This union was blessed with four children, all surviving. Mr. Samuel Lorin Pinto of Burbank, O.; Bessie, Lerton and Russel at home. Also Samuel Roy Pinto of Cleveland, O., the only grandchild of the deceased.

On Oct. 19, 1905 God saw fit to take the mother from this home, leaving the entire responsibility of homemaking and rearing of the children upon the father. He accepted the added duties without a murmur and performed to the best of his ability the task of keeping the home together until he too was called.

He gave a life of service to the community, being a kind neighbor and a friend to all always standing ready to give a helping hand to those in need.

The sudden removal of such a life from our midst, will leave a vacancy and a shadow which will be deeply felt throughout the community and the public. And with deep sympathy with the bereaved we express our hope that even so great a sorrow will be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

And the expression of his whole life is found in the words of the Poet as he says:

He lived in the house by the side of the road
There the race of men to see.
The men who are good and the men who are bad
As good and as bad as he.
He did not sit in the scorners seat
Nor hurl the cynics ban.
But he lived in the house by the side of the road
And was a friend to man.

He knew there were brook-gladdened meadows ahead
And the mountains of wearisome height;
That the road passed on through the long afternoon
And stretched away to the night.
Yet still he rejoiced when the travelers rejoice
And wept with the friends who plan -
For he lived in the house by the side of the road
And was a friend to man.

BEAUTIFUL STOLEN COW

PONTIAC, Mich.—The cow he stole and manicured to disguise her has put C. H. Baker, 31, Royal Oak, Mich., behind the bars for the next year. Baker and a companion stole the cow from a White Lake road farmer and dolled her up, even to plucking the eyebrows, to change her appearance. Then they took her to an auction sale. Deputy sheriffs, however, penetrated Bossie's makeup and arrested the two men. Orland McCardle, 27, the companion, was placed on probation for two years.

FINANCE PLAN

The president, it is believed, will go to the south for the remaining positions. Max B. Wellborn of Anniston, Ala., former governor of the federal reserve bank at Atlanta, and former Govefnor Angus W. McLean of North Carolina, appeared among the likely selections.

President Hoover, it is believed, will go to the south and west for the remaining three directors. Because the ex-officio members — Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Governor Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve and Paul Restor, head of the federal farm loan system and Dawes are Republicans—the remaining three must be Democrats. The bill provides no more than four can be from one party.

Suggestions from the middle and far west have been conspicuously absent. Jesse H. Jones of Houston, Tex., is one of the most prominently backed.
